JSX

JSX is basically a syntax extension of regular JavaScript and is used to create React elements. These elements are then rendered to the React DOM.

Study the following sections by clicking the hyperlinks and run the examples shown there:

- Why JSX?
- Embedding Expressions in JSX
- JSX is an Expression Too
- Specifying Attributes with JSX
- Specifying Children with JSX
- JSX Prevents Injection Attacks
- JSX Represents Objects

Assignment:

Create a "div" in a simple html page. Using JSX syntax create a "list" of few elements and render it inside the "div" using React.

You can refer the following webpage for help:

https://www.w3schools.com/react/react_jsx.asp